

courant.com

FEAR, ITSELF

Home

About

My Column

Email

Subscribe

When your love life creates negative spillover at your work

By Susan Campbell on June 12, 2009 9:00 AM | Permalink | Comments \(0\)

Has it happened to you? Want to talk about it?

Amy Nicole Salvaggio, assistant professor of industrial/organizational psychology at University of New Haven is looking for couples who will talk confidentially about their love- and work lives.

She's studying how to help employers cope with and assist employees whose personal lives affect their work.

"Employers continually ask, 'What can we do to help a great employee whose romantic relationship is affecting his or her work performance, and how can we help employees balance their personal and professional relationships?' Our aim is to answer those questions," said Salvaggio.

Couples should be over age 22 and work more than 20 hours a week. Compensation for completion will be $90 in gift cards per couple.

For more information, contact Salvaggio at 203-932-7381 or at asalvaggio@newhaven.edu.