

WHY Give?

What Motivates:

There were many elements in my childhood that caused me to feel that, as a woman, I could reach for the stars and work toward my true potential. They included my grandmother, my parents and many of the influential educators I encountered along the way. School was always a place I could demonstrate my talents and receive acknowledgement and feedback to help make me better, stronger and more confident in my abilities.

What Matters:

To be authentic to myself and, following that, to be the best parent, wife and professional I can possibly be. It is also critical to me to feel as if I am making a contribution to the community around me and doing my part to help others reach their goals and dreams.

Why She Helps:

I give to UNH because it is a place where there is a discernible commitment to helping students reach into themselves and discover their own dreams and ambitions.

Equally important is the support and encouragement that goes along with that commitment, to help students stretch, grow and work to achieve their dreams. It is truly the "school of dream fulfillment."
