

Moving from Institutions to Community-based Treatment in Juvenile Justice

Connecticut's Opportunity to Close CJTS and Lead the Nation (again) in Juvenile Justice Reform

"We are a community of possibilities, not a community of problems. Community exists for the sake of belonging and takes its identity from the gifts, generosity, and accountability of its citizens. It is not defined by its fears, its isolation, or its penchant for retribution."

Setting the Context

COMMUNITY
CONNECTIONS
FOR YOUTH

ALTERNATIVE TO INCARCERATION CONTINUUM

How we define “continuum of care”

Definition: A continuum of care is an array of meaningful non-residential community-based programs, supports, resources and services specifically designed to meet the individual needs of young people and their families in their homes. Continua of care cultivate the strengths of youth and families and provide them with what they might need at different stages of intensity in order to keep young people out of the juvenile justice system and confinement.

Impact: In a continuum of care, youth will be able to develop AUTONOMY, COMPETENCE and a SENSE OF RELATEDNESS or belonging to their families and communities in a way that helps to ESTABLISH OR IMPROVE PUBLIC SAFETY IN THEIR HOME COMMUNITIES.

A Better Model for Serving Youth With Complex Needs

TRADITIONAL CONTINUUM FOR YOUTH WITH COMPLEX NEEDS

INDIVIDUALIZED SERVICE PLANNING PROCESS

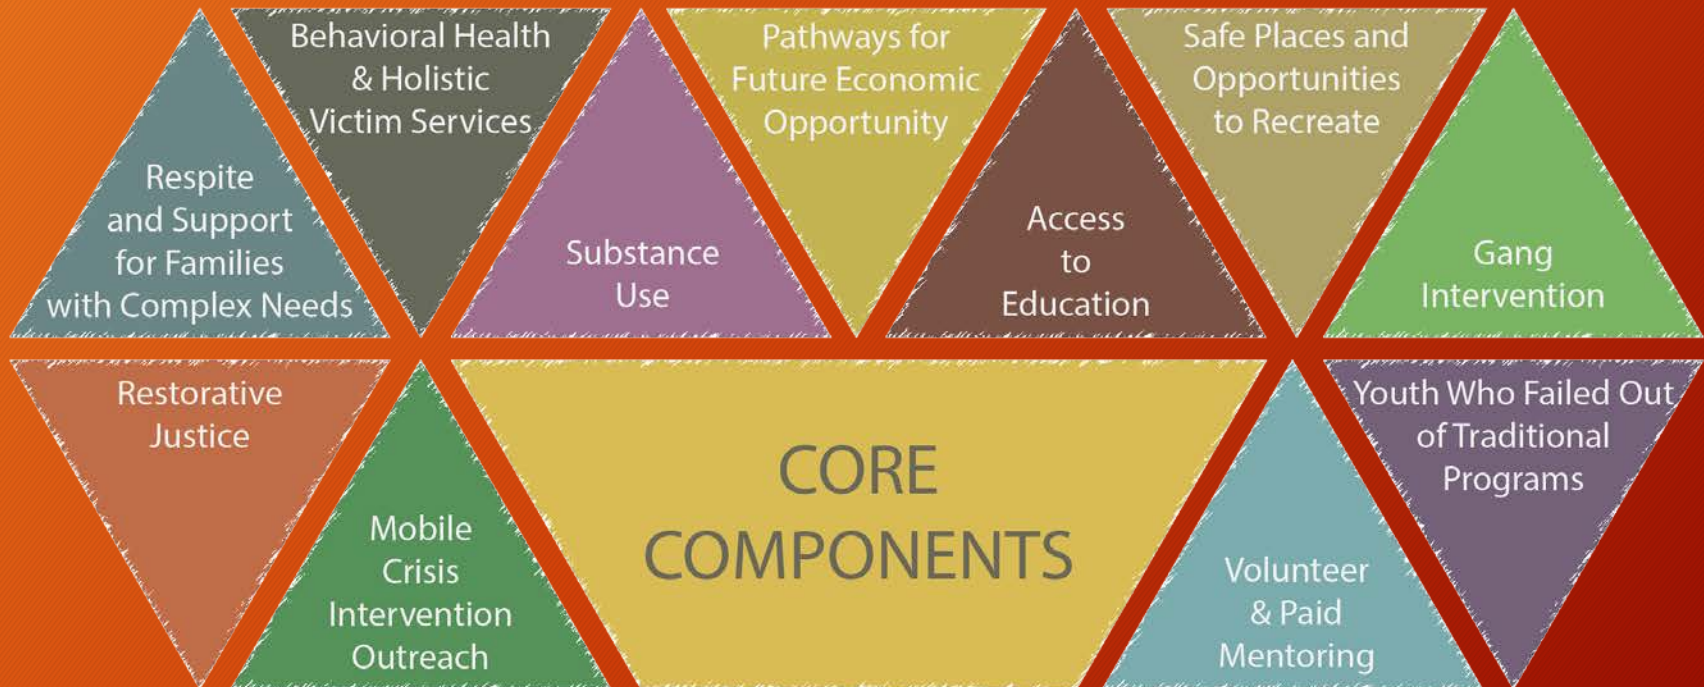

Key Strategies

- WRAPAROUND PLANNING PROCESS
- CREDIBLE MESSENGERS
- FAMILY ADVOCACY
- FLEXIBLE FUND FOR EXTRAORDINARY NEEDS
- CRISIS AND SAFETY PLANNING

Credible Messengers

The “Credible Messenger Initiative” at the Department of Youth Rehabilitation Services (DYRS) is a transformative mentoring intervention program for youth committed to the agency, with a restorative justice philosophy for young people in the community at large. The mission of the initiative is to connect all young people in the care and custody of DYRS to healthy homes and supportive communities, and to provide preventative supports to all youth in Washington D.C.

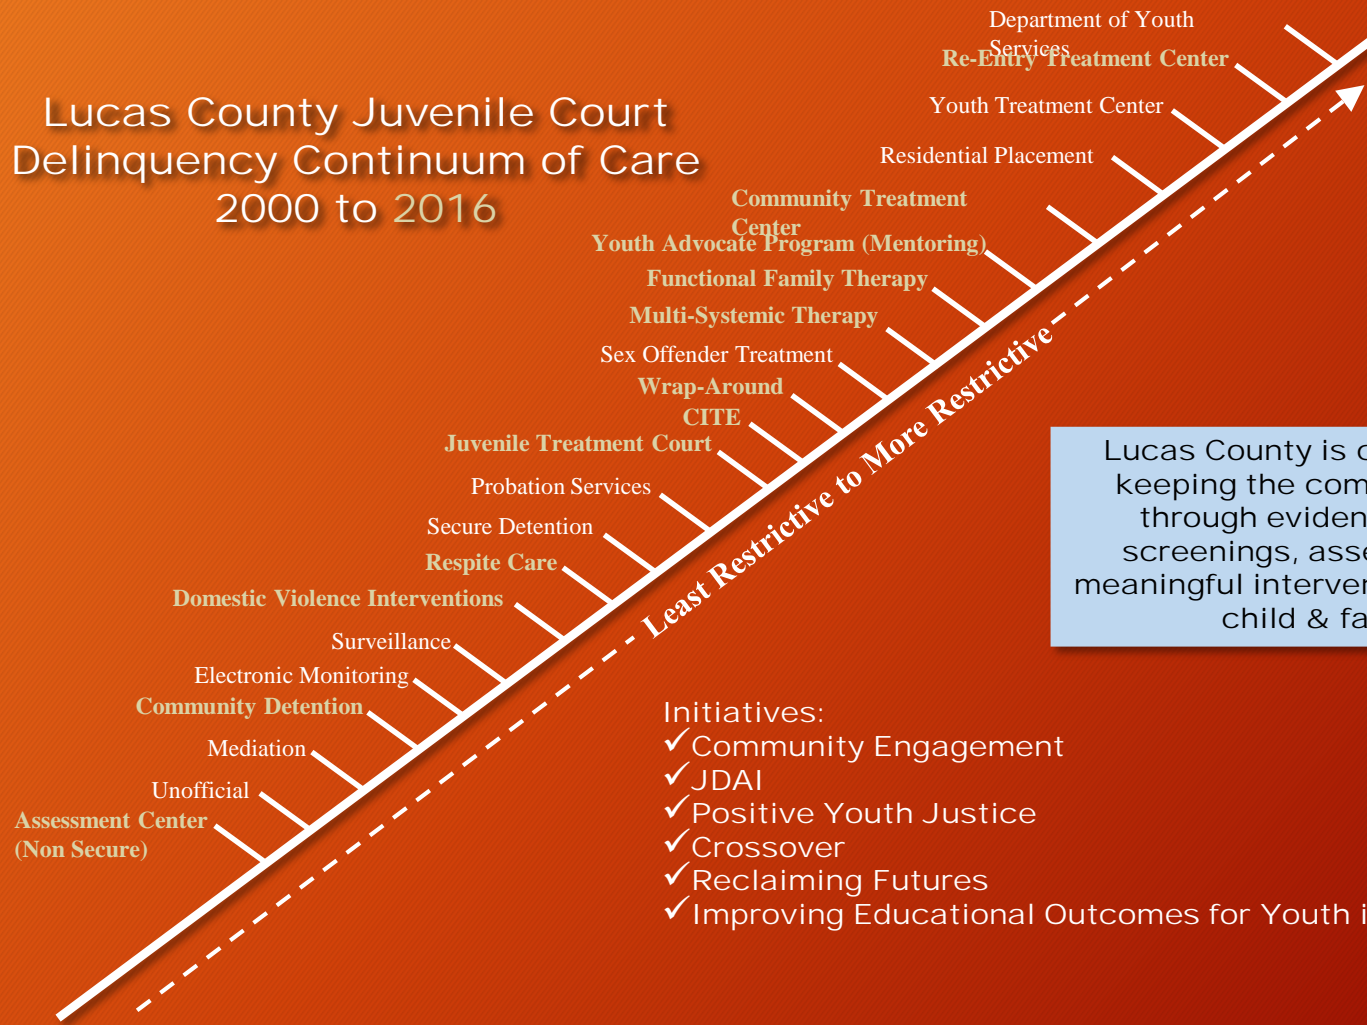

Core Components of a Continuum of Care

Examples of programs for high risk young people

- Marion County, Indiana (alternative to state commitments)
- Delaware DYS (aftercare)
- Chicago (Programs targeted to highest risk young people)
- Lucas County, OH
- New Study Shows that community programs work: During a two-year follow-up period which compared young people in an intensive community-based program or probation, probation youth were significantly more likely to experience a state commitment than the youth in community-based non-residential program (21% versus 4%). In other words, probation clients were five times more likely to be committed within two years after receiving services.

HOW TO DEVELOP A CONTINUUM OF CARE

Step #1: Establish a Sense of Urgency

- Rejecting youth prisons as the best way to meet youth needs, achieve public safety and improve youth outcomes

Step #2: Creating the Guiding Coalition

- Establishing expertise of youth, family and community in addition to that of systems and providers to safely decarcerate young people

Step #3: Developing a Vision and Strategy

- Defining a set of principles unique to community and culture for how to best serve young people in need

Step #4: Communicating the Change Vision

- Community and staff forums to share the vision, strategy and principles

Step #5: Empowering Broad-based Action

- Creating and funding a plan to implement the vision, strategy and principles that has been shared with others

Step #6: Generating Short-term Wins

- Track and acknowledge early, positive outcomes, including nontraditional
- outcomes for a juvenile justice system, such as stronger families

Step #7: Consolidating Gains and Producing More Change

- Official redirection of dollars earmarked for community vs. facility

Step #8: Anchoring New Approaches in Culture

- Closing youth prisons and depending instead on the community and its array of services to safely meet the needs of any young person and their family, in the community

Close to Home Initiative

Presentation to the Juvenile Justice Policy Oversight Committee
“Moving from Institutions to Community Based Treatment in Juvenile Justice Panel”

Overview

In 2012, Governor Cuomo signed legislation that returned New York City youth committed by the family court on a delinquency docket from facilities upstate back to New York City.

Close to Home is a juvenile justice initiative that allows youth from New York City to receive services and supports in or close to the communities where they live. Close to Home builds on successful New York City and State reforms along with best practices from across the country aimed at improving outcomes for young people and their families by strengthening crucial services, resources and opportunities.

The New York City Administration for Children's Services partners with community based organizations throughout the 5 boroughs to deliver a broad range of services at non and limited secure residential sites and in the community. Close to Home group homes are neighborhood-based, small, supportive, and supervised environments where youth learn new skills designed to address their unique needs. Subsequent aftercare supervision enables youth to successfully return home by practicing and enhancing the skills they learned while in placement.

Principles

Permanency – Close to Home is structured to develop, support and maintain permanent connections for youth and families.

Well-Being – Close to Home will foster opportunities for youth to be socially connected, feel safe, be in a stable environment and to learn and grow.

Family Engagement – Family support and contact are essential to each child's growth and success. In Close to Home, dislocation is minimized creating frequent and meaningful opportunities for youth to participate in treatment and better engage with their families.

Community Integration – Youth connect and remain connected to positive adults, peers and community supports embedded in their neighborhoods. These relationships last well past program placement to ensure ongoing success and encourage youth becoming an asset to their community.

Principles

Educational Continuity – By receiving individualized educational services through the NYC Department of Education, youth earn academic credits towards a high school diploma. Support and guidance is provided to ensure continuity when youth return to their home schools.

Evidenced Based and Trauma Informed Treatment – Services are chosen that have a track record of obtaining positive outcomes with youth. A strength-based approach builds upon success and previously learned skills.

Public Safety – Intensive supervision and monitoring is provided by well-staffed programs comprised of highly-trained individuals.

Accountability – Data is used to drive programmatic decisions and to ensure that Close to Home is effective, efficient and responsive.

Rethinking Juvenile Justice

- Youth Prison Impact
 - ▣ Financial Cost
 - ▣ Negative outcomes
- Developing Success
 - ▣ Reduce
 - ▣ Reform
 - ▣ Replace
 - ▣ Reinvest

The D.C. Story

- Historical Context
 - Oak Hill Youth Center
 - Jerry M. vs. District of Columbia

The old way of thinking...

The D.C. Story Continued

- Omnibus Juvenile Justice Amendment Act of 2003 (D.C. Law 15-261)
- What happened next...

The new way of thinking...

The District's System Today

- 2008 – ‘12 Re-conviction/Re-arrests fell 37%
- 2014
 - 48% of youth were in community-based placement
- More Youth in the Community
 - 83% of youth have not been re-convicted
 - Participating youth have lower re-arrest occurrences

Positive Youth Development Outcomes

- Youth Succeeding at:
 - ▣ Work
 - 1125 youth linked to job programs
 - ▣ Education
 - 739 youth linked to education programs
 - ▣ Health
 - 656 youth linked to community-based health services
 - ▣ Creativity
 - 228 youth linked to community-based creativity programs

Note:

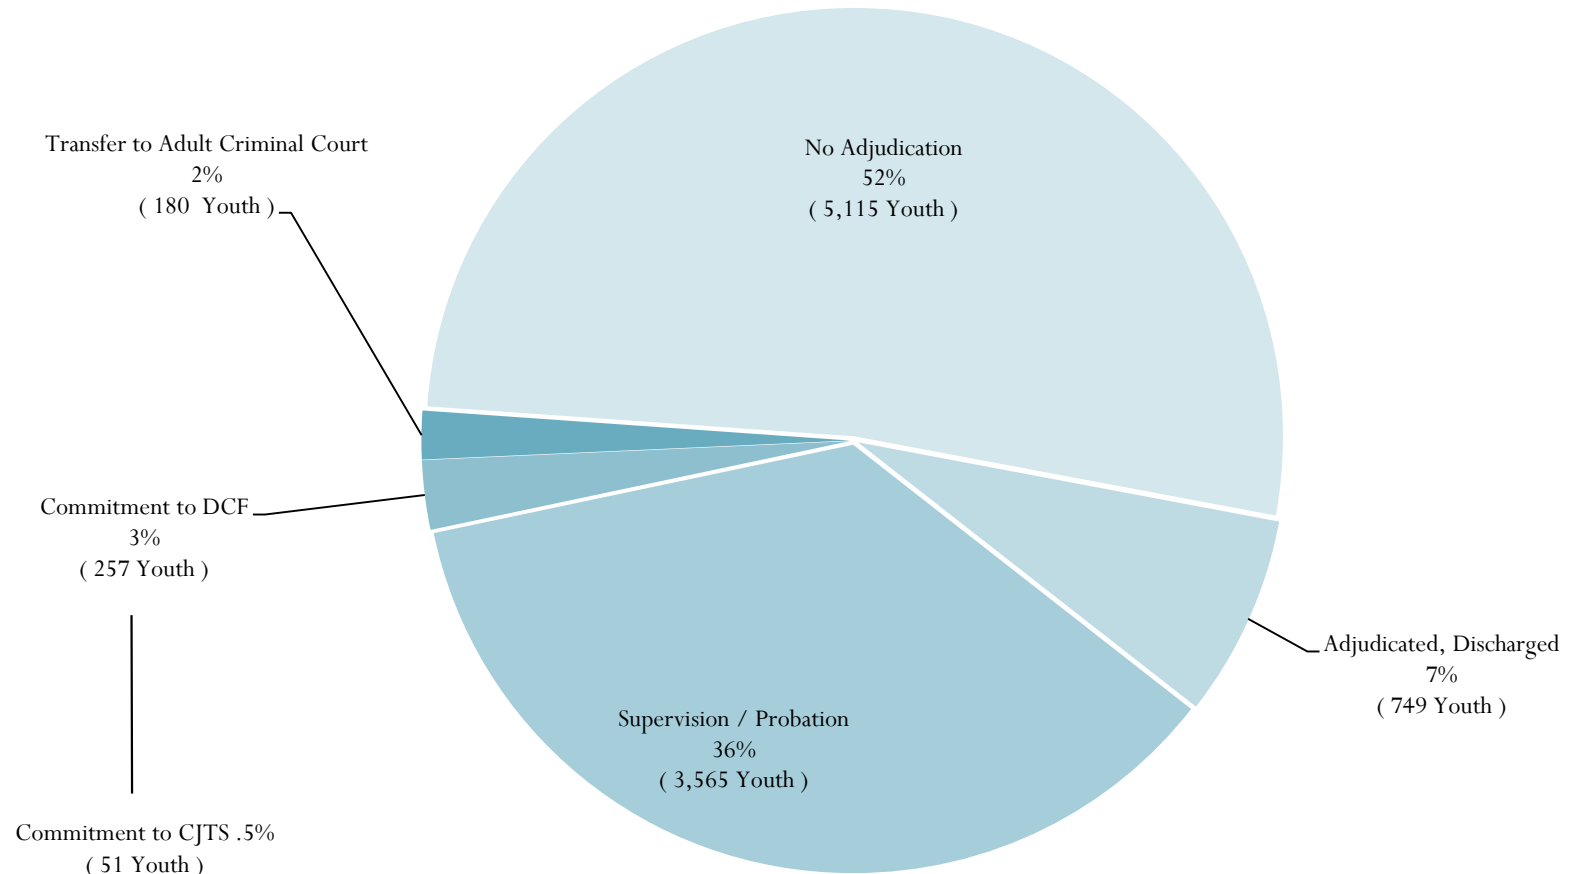

Committed-Detained Youth - include youth committed to DYRS who have been ordered to YSC through an open juvenile case ;

Committed Youth - have an open commitment and are in an Awaiting Placement status at YSC due to DYRS policy or a Case Manager supervisory decision;

Lessons Learned

- ❑ Don't spend a disproportionate amount of time on buildings.
- ❑ Spend more time, energy and resources on developing the rest of the continuum, with services, supports and opportunities.
- ❑ The reform process must be data driven and research informed
- ❑ Build partnerships outside the justice system for continued success
- ❑ Dangers of youth confinement
- ❑ At the end of the day, need to make decision, implement and adjust overtime

We need to focus on building out the rest of the continuum, rather than focused on the smallest percentage of youth in the Connecticut Juvenile Justice System

Remembering the 4 R's

- Connecticut has shown its ability to:
 - ▣ Reduce
 - ▣ Reform
- Connecticut is ready to:
 - ▣ Replace the Connecticut Juvenile Training School
 - ▣ Reinvest the savings into expanding the community

JPI's look into Connecticut's System

- Juvenile Justice Reform in Connecticut: How collaboration and commitment improved outcomes for youth (2013)
 - Reduced overreliance on confinement
 - 70% reduction in residential commitment
 - Developed a continuum of targeted, non-residential programs for youth
 - Diverted status offenders away from court system and locked detention centers
 - Kept out of the adult system

Closing the Connecticut Juvenile Training School (CJTS)

Current Status

- Capacity 230 residents
 - Average Daily Population in 2016 – 48 youth
 - Predicted Average Daily Population in 2018 – 19 youth

On-going Reforms

- Major System wide goals advised by the JJPOC
- Expansion of diversion
- Making probation and aftercare approaches more effective
- Reducing the use of pretrial detention
- Reducing reliance on facilities, and focusing resources on community-based approaches
- Improving systems' management of resources and strengthening strategies to serve young people more effectively

Connecticut is Ready

- Reinvest the savings from the training school
 - Strategic and purposeful reinvestment areas
- Continued support with community-based organizations and services
 - Establishment of performance measures
- Develop partnerships for continued efforts
 - Capacity building with impacted communities

The System Has Been Ready
